Mail Art is more than just image-bearing mail passing along in the mail streams. It is a person-to-person attempt to redefine our cultural heritage — the very way we see and think and feel about the world around us. It represents a new way of relating to one another and creating our own culture, by minimizing the aesthetic and material trappings of the market economy... working with, and when necessary against the grain of both popular and high culture... maximizing our collective human souls.
